

Take a break

When you get a break from the summer weather, your lawn does too. The arrival of cooler weather means plants and lawns don't need as much water as they did during the hot summer months.

Steps to take now:

- Cut back or stop lawn irrigation
- Fertilize your lawn
- Aerate your lawn to help water and fertilizer reach the roots

Don't be scammed

It's easy to mistake a scam call for a legitimate communication from your utility provider. Here are some red flags to identify a potential scam:

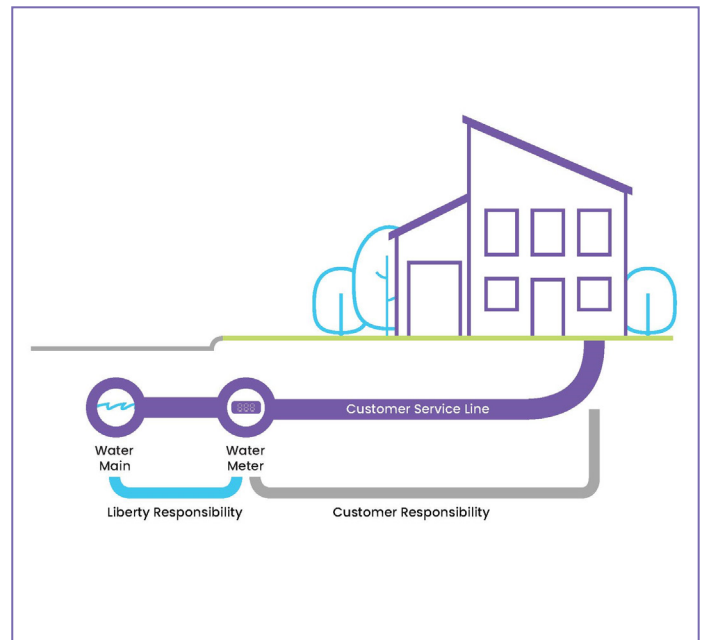

- Request payment using a prepaid credit card
- Demand immediate payment

Let's work together to protect our system

At Liberty, we maintain and improve our water system to help ensure that we can deliver safe, reliable water service to homes, businesses, and critical services like fire departments. One way you can help maintain the water system serving you is to be aware of your responsibility as a customer. Property owners are responsible for maintaining the service line running between the home or building exterior and the meter. In most cases, the line was put in place at the time the home or building was originally built. Depending on the age of your home, your service line may have gone through years, or even decades, of seasonal changes, root invasions, or increasing blockages. Any of these may cause problems with your service and usually occur with little to no advance notice.
